NEW OLD IDEAS IN WARFARE

We will never know his name because he lived during the period of the cave man. And in those days they didn't have written records. However there were artists and some of them drew pictures on the walls of the large caves. This particular man was one of the first inventors in the field of warfare. He and his companions lived in the southern sunny lands. And the people from the north were starting their invasion. He wanted some way to improve the rocks his people used as their main weapons. But how? The young were taught to throw the rocks with accuracy.

His keen mind was able to analyze the situation: Some way to throw a heavier rock. Some way to throw a rock a much further distance than ever previously accomplished. And then one day he saw something that started him thinking. A group of youngsters were having some fun. Taking small stones, placing them in a strip of skin, and throwing them. And so was developed one of our earliest projectile-throwing devices. However there are experts who take the view that the sling in its simplest form is thought to have come from the observation that when a stone was attached to a club or bludgeon and came loose as the club was swung, it traveled a much greater distance than if thrown by hand.

The Roman Legions called the slingman the "funditor" and considered him an integral part of the army. The slingman continued long after his legendary acts had been outmoded in distance and accuracy by the innovation of mechanical means of propulsion. It was finally recognized that the human muscle had reached its limit. The sling's last major military appearance was during the Hugenot Wars.

However if you dropped heavy rocks from a high distance they would be effective against an attacker. So that when a castle was attacked one means of defense was to have a large pile of heavy rocks available. When the enemy tried scaling ladders they could be dropped upon them. Crushing the ladders as well as the soldiers. Now if you had an airplane and could drop rocks from them, what would happen? Suppose we substitute darts for the rock. A bundle of darts are dropped from a low flying plane over a group of soldiers on the ground below.

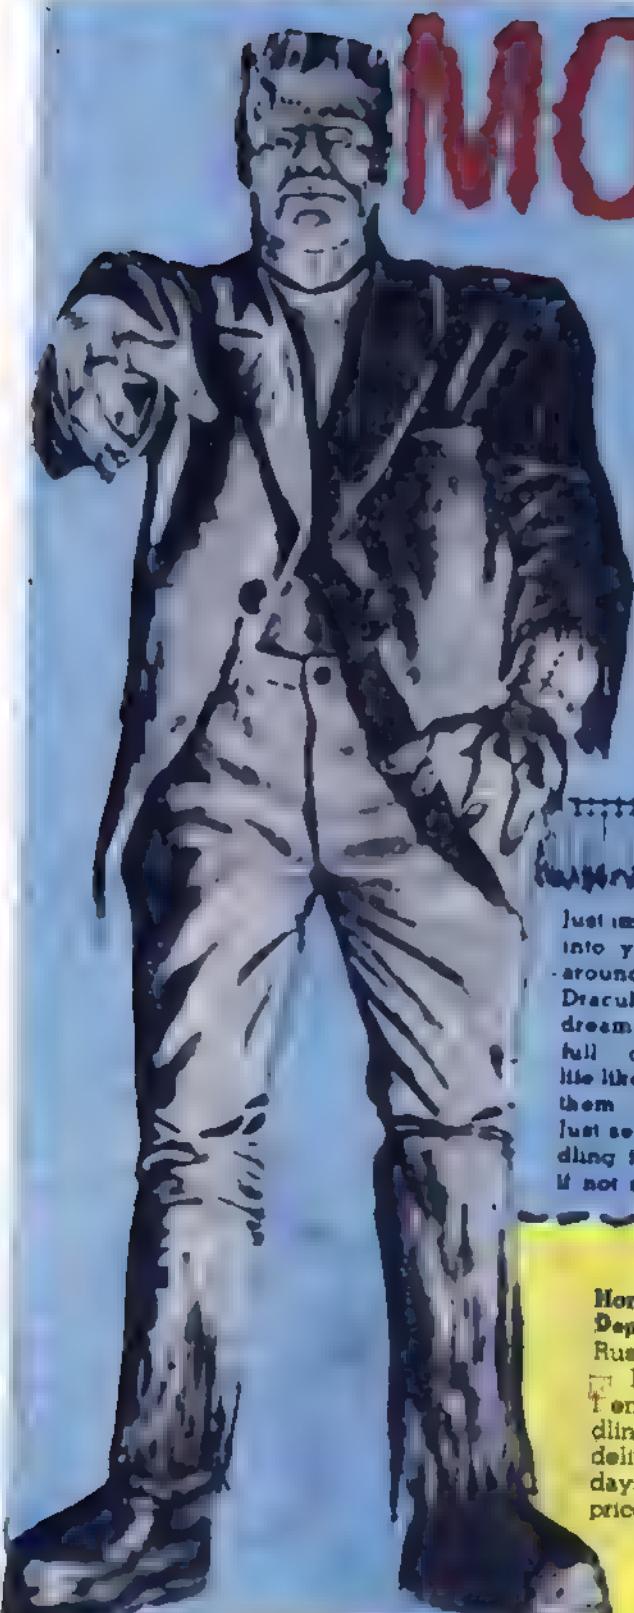

The cord holding the darts together then separates and the darts spread out. This idea was actually tried out in World War I. And at the start it looked very effective. But then a simple idea was used to reduce its effectiveness. When the low flying plane was sighted, the command was given to the soldiers to disperse and so that most of the darts did not find their mark.

In the war in Vietnam-South and North we have had to try out a variety of ideas against an enemy well trained in guerrilla tactics. For the most part, however, ordinary equipment has been modified in Vietnam for use against the enemy. One of the most important examples is the arming of helicopters with machine guns and rockets and the similar arming of the T-28 jet trainer. The mainstay of the helicopter force is the turbine powered UH-1, still known by its nickname, Huey, from the days it was designated HU-1. It was not designed to be armed but the Army has mounted on it two .30 caliber machine guns and a rack of eight 2.75 rockets in two rows. On some UH-1's there are 24 rockets but no machine guns.

And strange as it may seem we have gone back to a very ancient idea which we mentioned at the start of this article: The throwing or dropping of small projectiles from a height. Perhaps if a cave man watched it he might even smile. Whether he would be frightened or not, is something I can't state. The idea or gimmick is known as "Lazy Dog." It consists of a drum of steel pellets dropped from a plane that explodes at 6,000 feet. The pellets have a buckshot effect against men and equipment when they reach the ground. A similar but more powerful weapon is the CBU, for Cluster Bomber Unit. Small fragmentation bombs are released from a drum against the enemy guerrilla units in the jungle.

It is realized that the enemy will disperse and this technique takes that fact into consideration. If you can get a "rain of missiles" then no matter what they try to do they will be hit and put out of action. So in warfare there are new ideas, old ideas, and new versions of old ideas.

FRANK McLAUGHLIN

KARATE IS THE OLDEST, PERHAPS, OF ALL THE MARTIAL ARTS OF THE ORIENT! NO ONE IS REALLY SURE OF ITS ORIGIN BUT WE DO KNOW RELIGIOUS MONKS USED KARATE QUITE EXTENSIVELY IN THE COURSE OF THEIR TRAVELS THROUGH THE MOUNTAINS! THERE ARE MANY DIFFERENT SCHOOLS OF KARATE TODAY, AND THE STYLES OF PLAY VARY FROM SCHOOL TO SCHOOL! THROUGH CENTURIES OF DEVELOPMENT, KARATE HAS EVOLVED TO ITS PRESENT FORMS, AND IS A FAST RISING SPORT TODAY!

Albert Dorne—probably the greatest money-maker in the history of commercial art. At the height of his career, he began a full time search for people who like to draw.

He's Looking for People Who Like to Draw

TODAY HUNDREDS of men and women who never thought they could be artists are working happily at easels and drawing boards, making pictures and getting well paid for it. They all can thank Albert Dorne, a famous artist who devotes almost his full time to helping other people become artists.

Some of the People Dorne Has Helped

Herb Smith was a payroll clerk. Soon after he started studying with us, he landed an art job with a large printing firm. This was four years ago; today he's head artist for the same firm.

Don Golemba of Detroit is another. He stepped up from railroad worker to the styling department of a big automobile company—by showing his work with the School. Now he helps design new-car models.

Pat Browning wanted to escape from her dull typing job to something creative. Soon after studying with us, she was promoted to full-time artist with the same firm—at much more money.

With the right training, Wanda Pickulski gave up her typing job to become fashion artist for a local department store.

Eric Ericson worked in a garage while he studied art at night. Today he is a successful artist, earns seven times as much, and is building a new home for his family.

Long before Albert Dorne started looking for people who like to draw, they came to him for advice and help. Since he alone could help only a few of these people, he called together America's most successful artists—men like Norman Rockwell, Jon Whitcomb, Stevan Dohanos and Al Parker.

A Plan to Help Others

He said: "All over America, there are people who like to draw, who could be turned into good artists. Why can't we give these people the training they need—including all the trade secrets and know-how we've learned over the years? I'm suggesting a new kind of school—a home-study art school that would give talented people the best professional art training, no matter where they live."

The famous artists agreed. Taking time from their busy careers, they spent several years creating a remarkable series of art lessons covering every aspect of drawing and painting. They illustrated their lessons with over 5,000 "here's-how" illustrations. The lessons start from scratch and cover every skill a top artist needs. Finally, the famous artists developed a wonderful way to give each student personal correction and advice all through his training.

Albert Dorne is not surprised by the success of his students. "The art field is growing. We keep getting calls from all over the country, asking us for practical, well-trained students who can step into full-time or part-time art jobs."

Famous Artists Talent Test
To find others with art talent worth developing, the Famous Artists created a 12-page talent test. Thousands paid to take this test, but now the School offers it free and grades it free. Men and women who do well on the test—or can offer other evidence of art talent—may enroll in the School. But there's no obligation. Simply mail the coupon below.
